HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 14TH, 1895.

THE fact that China's indemnity loan has boan given to Russia instead of being negotiated through Sir ROBERT HART tends to direct attention to the position occupied by the Inspector-General at Peking No men has ever served his employers better than Sir Robert Hart has served the Peking Government. Possessed of indefitigable industry and a spendid talent for organisation he has brought the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs Service to a pitch of perfection that excites universal admiration. The Chinese are believed to have appreciated his services; at al events they have allowed him to carry on his work with very little interference on their part. When the country became liable for the payment of a large war, indemnity, therefore, it was expected that the Government would turn, as they had in former cases of inancial and political trouble, to the Inspector-General. It was understood that S.r. ROBERT HART was willing to undertake the work of financing the loan on certain conditions which would have materially swelled the Imperial revenue and contributed to the prosperity of the country. The matter was looked upon as being as good as settled when suddenly it was announced that Russia had offered her services as financier. -and after a little dallying those services were accepted, thus giving Russia and her friend the capitalist, la belle France, a financial grip on China's throat and therefore on the service of which Sir ROBERT HART is the head.

The circumstance is calculated to, suggest some doubt as to whether Sir ROBERT HART's influence at Peking has not been somewhat overrated; and also some question as to the tendency of that influence, which, whether it has been in some degree overrated or not, has been and is very great: It has been the fashion to regard Sir ROBERT HART as an apostle of civilization in China, using his influence for the gradual o ening up of the country; and therefore for the banefit of foreign tradal relations. The British Government has attached much value to his advice and he has been almost more powerful than the Minister. That his advice has always been honestly given goes without saying, but we have high authority for the saying that no man can serve two musters! When a litigant desires a lyice he is not likely to go to his opponent officiney br counsel. Sir ROBERT HART's survices have been given fully and completely to China and his influence, while consolidating the great service over which he so ably presides, has been, in the opinion of some judges, rather calculated to keep fireigners in general at arm's length. In a question vitally affecting Hongkong which is not unlikely to engage attention at an early date, namely, the acquisition by Great Britain from China of a farther strip of territory on the Kowloon side, Sir ROBERT HART'S voice is likely to carry some weight. The proposed acquisition would include all the Customs stations at the entrance to the harbour and the Inspector-General would be able to supply the Chinese Government with arguments which might not becur to themselves against the proposal. Something would of course have to be substituted for the present arrangement, for the British Government and public opinion at home would not sanction the colony's being again turned into a smugging station. It is premature to discuss that point at present, but it will be seen that Sir Robert HART will have something to say in the matter, and with every respect for his great abilities and high character it will be well to recognise that he is a counsellor engaged on the other side," that is, the Chinese side.

With reference to the reported rejection by a committee of plans prepared by the Director of Public Works for the proposed b Public Offices, the plans in question were, we hear, merely trial plans prepared at the request of the committee to enable them to see how certain ideas they suggested would work out The committee was appointed as long age as 189 to report as to whether new Public Offices wer necessary and if so to make suggestions as to what was required. There are two lots in front of the City Hall available as sites. After the matter had been dragging on for some time being delayed by the plague of last year and afterwards by the engagements of the Director of Public Works in connection with the Taipingshan arbitration, the committee got fairly o work some months ago, and in order to see whether one or both lots would be required requested the Director of Public Works to have in one building. On the plans being submitted it was at once seen that the idea of placing all in one building could not be carried out The present idea therefore is to have the members of the committee was from the outset that competitive designs should be invited and although that appears not to have been the intention of the Government, it will probably be carried out. The plans prepared thus far have been preliminary or trial plans only, with the idea of arriving at a decision as to the general character of the buildings for which inal plans should be prepared. . .

SANDAKAN NOTES. FROM A CORRESPONDENT.

6th September. On the 19th August there was considerable excitement here when it was reported that Mat Sallie, a Badjow, who had proviously given the Bornean Government trouble, had appeared in Sandakan harbour with something like thirty five native craft, manned with close upon a hundred of his followers, all being fully armed: The estensible motive of Mat Sallie's demonstration was to lodge _ complaint with the Government, but as he committed an illegal act by coming with an armed force he was forbidden to land. COL. DENBY AND MISSIONS IN-

Mr. Denby, the U.S. Minister to China, a dispatch just received at the Department State, in describing the work of Christian missionaries in China, Says :---"I think that no one can controvert the patent fact that the Chinese are enormously benefited by the labours of the missionaries their midst. Foreign hospitals are a great boon to the sick. Chins, before the adven of the fereigner, did not know what surgery was. There are more than twenty charity hospitals in China-which are presided over mon of as great ability as can be found elsewhere in the world. Dr. Kerr's hospital at Canton is one of the greatest institutions of the kind in the world. The Viceroy, Li Hung chang has for years maintained at Tientsin at his own expense a foreign hospital. In the matter of education the movement is immense. There are schools and colleges all over China taught by the missionaries.

"Protestants and Catholics from nearly every country under the sun are engaged in this work and, in my opinion, they do nothing but good. I leave out of this discussion the religious benefits conferred by converting Chinese persons to to which all olso is subsidiary, but the subject States. There is no established religion in the United States, and the American Buddhist Mahommedan, Jew. infidel, or any other religionist, would receive at the hands of his country's representatives abroad exactly the same consideration and protection as a Christian would. I can only say that converts to Christienity are numerous. There are supposed to be forty thousand Protestant converts, now in China, and at least five hundred thousand Catholic converts. There are many native Christian churches. The converts seem to be as devout as people of any other race. " As far as my knowledge extends I can and do say that the missionaries in China are self sacrificing: that their lives are pure: that they are devoted to their work; that their influence is beneficial to the natives; that the arts and sciences and civilization are greatly spread by their efforts: that many useful Western books are translated by them into Chinese; that they are the leaders in all charitable work, giving largely themselves, and personally disbursing the funds with which they are intrusted; that they do make converts, and such converts are montally benefited by conversion: "In answer to these statements, which usually acknowledged to be true, it does not do to say, as if the answer were conclusive, that the literati and gentry are usually opposed to missionaries. This antagonism was to have been expected. The missionaries antagonize the wordoes not act, as is supposed by many, by tan- | being admitted, no amount of antagonism can benefited by missionary work in China. commerce. Civilization, learning, instruction, breed new wants, which commerce supplies. Look at the electric telegraph, now in every province in China but one. SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY

There are eight principal regions producing distinct types of vegetation, states Mr. Lobert Walker. In the squatorial zone we find the most luxuriant, owing to the combined heat and abundant moisture. Trees are large, flowers display varied and pleasing brilliancy, and aerial plants weave dense networks of vegotation. Palms, bananas, and orchids are on every side. while pitcher plants ply their curious insecttrauning trade. One singular plant of this zone is the rafflesia a fungoid parasite with neither stem nor feavor and a flower three feet in diameter. Rivalling this is the aristolockia in some cases large enough to be worn as tropical zones palms and bananes are still sterile tracts, due to dryness—notably the Sahara desert and a portion of Arabia. The tropical zones again, exhibit nalms and banangs but a of tree forms and peoper plants. In the subevidence, but are fewer, arborescent grasses are pomegranates, with their brilliantly coloured zones, which are the homes of the ivy and hop, to credit the report. It is here that vegetation presents such seasonal contrasts—the leaves falling and herbs dying down as winter approaches. Conifers are esperhododondrons, sedges, and lichens of the arotic zone; and herbaccous perennials, such as garifrages, of the polar zone, where also the crypto-

With such an apparatus he raised himself from the ground, but avoided a second trial, as, unlike Lilienthal, he was unwilling to take the risks necessary to acquire the art of balancing himself in the air, and was unable to make sure of a safe descent.

A star, says Sir Robert S. Ball, is a mass of natter heated to such an extent that its effu gence is perceived far and wide. But this heated condition is exceptional, and, though it doubtless lasts millions of years, the temperature must finally sink to that of space, where it will remain through all eternity unless again cindled by some accident into temporary uminosity. The nermal and ordinary state of all the matter of space is cold and non-luminous. and therefore invisible to us. So vast are the myriads of the visible stars-shown in thenands to the unaided eye, in tens, of thousands in a small belescope, in hundreds thousands in a moderate telescore and in abounding millions in our mightiest nstruments and most consitive photographic plates—that the mind of man fails to realize their number. But a much mightier effect would be necessary if we would seek to form a truly comprehensive estimate of the contents of the universe. We are to reflect that all objects which we can see—that is, a small portion of those which are in an unusual condition-constitute in all probability not one thousandth perhaps not one millionth, of the material heavens We are to reflect that each one of those suns which we find glowing in the depths of space is only one out of an untold number of other odies many of which are as large and many ory much larger.

A thunderbolt which struck a house in the Hartz Mountains melted two nails one-sixth inch in diameter. No forge could have done this, and Professor Hoppe calculates that an the victor. electric current of 200 amperes at 20,000 volts would be necessary to produce such an effect This would represent an energy of 5,000 horse lower if the lightning lasted a second, and 51.000 if, as is more probable, the discharge lasted only onc-tenth of a second.

It is possible to measure the light of the stars and planets by photography, but this is a slow process, and during the last year an almost astantoneous method of measurement has been developed in Ireland. This consists in the use in place of the eyepicce of a telescope of a very sensitive photo-electric cell, which is connected with a specially constructed electrometer. photo-electric cell, as now employed at Mr. Wilson's observatory at Daramona, consists essentially of a gloss cell containing the liquid gnanthol, one side of the cell having an aperture losed by a quartz window, while a class tube having a tightly-fitting aluminum wire passes through the opposite side of the cell nearly to this window. The outer end of the aluminum wire is connected by a platinum wire to one pole of the electrometer, and a platinum wire n the bottom of the cell passes to the other pole... The inner and of the aluminum wire is made sensitive by a coating of selenium, receives a positive electric charge and the liquid a negative one, the difference of potential being indicated by the electrometer. An ordinary parallin candle at a distance of 9 feet produces un electrometive force of about '03 volt, or 3/100 that of a Daniell cell. The light of Vega-as concontrated in a two-foot reflecting telesconsis slightly greater this, while that of Arcturus or Regulus, 56. Starlight is thus shown to be an easily measurable quantity of the values ob tained agree fairly well, for elars of similar colour, with the photometric measures of magnitudes—obtained by noting the thicknesses of glass prisms that extinguish the light—hithorto employed by astronomers.

After a spectroscopic comparison with the gas discovered-M. H. Deslandres announces that the permanent radiations of the sun's atmosphere that are not recognized on the earth are duced to a single one. This is a green ray called the ray of the corona, which is peculiar to the highest regions of the solar atmosphere allowing us to suppose that it belongs to a case lighter than hydrogen.

Experiments with the hydrometer as chemical balance have been made by an English chemist, Mr. H. I. Phillips, and have resulted in a simple instrument that is useful for certain purposes. Gilded brass bulbs are screwed to an aluminum stem floated in water in a class cylinder, and kept upright in the centre of the vessel by two arms moving on perpenlicular guide rods. A small aluminum pan is placed at the top of the stem. Under the guiding arms are needle points, and a movable needle s attached to one of the guide rods. In weigh ing out a definite quantity, the weight is first placed in the pan- The guide rod needle is then moved opposite the needle of the arms, the weight is removed, and the substance to be weighed is gradually dropped into the pan until the stem sinks to the point indicated. The range of weight that can be recorded is limited and, with the dolleroy, depends upon the size of the stem of the float.

LONDON, 12th August. Jim Corbett, the American champion pugilist, ind Bob Fitzsimmons, the Australian middleweight champion, had a quarrel in a bar-room at Philadelphia yesterday, and the Australian throw a glass at Corbott. The latter imnediately tackled Fitzsimmons, and getting his head in changery gave him a severe punching, plitting his face open. Friends of the parties then interfered, and prevented the Australian renewing the incounter. The police cleared the saloon in order to provent a general free fight which appeared to be induinent. Amother account of the affray declares that Corbett was the aggressor, and that he tried to pull Fitzsimmon's nose. The latter at once acted on the defensive, when Brady, soizing a chair, tried to brain him. Fitzsimmons thereupon folled Brady to the ground, and three men. of Corbett's party then seized the Australian, and held him while Corbett inflicted a savage cut upon his hand with a knife. In the course of the debate, on the Address reply in the House of Lords, the Earl of Rosebery, the late Premier, said that it was natural that after a general election the policy, though not the principles, of the Liberal party should be varied. Speaking with reference to Irish affairs he declared that self-government would yet be extended to Ireland, and perhaps, he added, to Scotland.

The Marquis of Salisbury said that it would be most unwise to abandon Chitral. Referring to the massacres of missionaries at Kacheng, he remarked that the Emperor of China appeared to share in the horror at the outrages. If the Chinese Government should prove luke warm in punishing the murderers, Great Britain would take further action. Adverting to the Armenian question, the Promier said that if Turkey withheld adequate guarantees for the carrying out of the reforms in Armenia, the result would be disastrous; and, should the Powers withdraw their support, the fictitious strongth of Turkey would disappear. Speaking of home affairs, Lord Salisbury said that the lesson taught by the late elections was that all parties must make their highest aim to improve the condition of the masses.

The debate on the Address in reply in the House of Commons was spiritless, though it was indicated by the Opposition that an amendment would be moved. Mr. John Dillon, M.P. for East Maye, moved that Government ought to introduce a bill to raviso the rents of Irish tenants and to restore the exicted tenants.

mr. Gerald Balfour, Chiof Secretary for Ireland, replied that legislation dealing with the Irish land question would be introduced next tession. The measure would be framed in a sympathetic spirit. The debate was adjourned.

LONDON, 17th August. In the House of Commons last night the amendments to the Address in roply moved by Mr. John Dillon and Mr. John Redmond wore negatived by large majorities.

The Birmingham School Board recently ap-pointed a committee to report on the handwriting in the Beard Schools, and their opinions as to methods of improving it. The committee has recommended in its report "that the slope of the letters should be left in any school to the discretion of the head teacher, but the hygienic and practical advantages of an upright or nearly upright method of writing point to the desirability of the general adoption of the system."

"Should Christians play billiards?" is still GOLD LEAF, 100 fine, per tack. 47.40 mildly agitating the minds of Young Men's Christians Associations and other societies of the same class, and it may be frankly admitted, remarks the Daily Telegraph, that the discussion is taking an unusually frivolous tone. For example, a local preacher of thirty years stand- Hongkong & Shai S125 183 p. ct. prem. ing complains that generally it is impossible for Christians or anybody elso to play billiards on the tables provided in temperance and religious clubs, because the tables are not level, the balls are not round and the cues are not straight. On the other hand, he finds that in a hotel some one takes a pride in the tables.

One of the most interesting so called haunted houses in England is Ewanning Hall, near Maryport, in Cumberland. It belongs to the Christian family known to fame in connexion with the mutineers of the Bounty. But its chief attraction to the visitor lies in the fact that it is the original of Dimmeridge House, introduced by Wilkie Collins into his masterpiece, "The Woman in White." Collins and Dickens know this neighbourhood well. II. II. L. Tramways. Ewanning Hall, with its estate of over 600 Hongkong Hotel acres, has just been offered for sale by auction Hongkong Ico by order of the Court of Chancery, but no H. & K. Wharf & G. purchaser was forthcoming.

A family party in the new House of Commons which so far seems to have escaped attention is composed of three brothers in law -Mr. Leonard Courtney, Mr. Henry Hobbonso, member for East Somersot, and Mr. Alfred Cripps, Q.C., member for the Stroud division of Gioucestershire. -who all of them married daughters of the late Mr. Richard Potter, a great railway magnate.
All three brothers in law sit on the Unionist side of the House, Mr. Cripps alone calling. himself a Conservative. The latter takes his seat for the first time in the present Parliament. Another brother in law, by the way, is Mr. Sydney Webb, the great programmespinuer-in-ordinary (it is whispored) to the Liberal Party.

Some perticulars are given in the London American concerning Mr. W. K. Vandorbilt's yacht Valiant, which is said to be the most magnificantly appointed private floating palaco in the world. The yacht is in keeping with the luxuriousness with which Mr. Vanderbilt has for some one or two years surrounded himself, and no cost was considered in its furnishing. The woods in the suite of cabins were won from all over the earth. In the sailor's compartments may be found the boautiful bird's eye maple of Canada, while every wooded land in the world was laid under tribute for the furnishings of the rooms. So rich in furnishings and comfort are they that the great saloon, done in Louis Quinza style; was said last winter to be the most clogant room ashore or affoat.

1895. With which is incorporated THE CHINA DIRECTORY.

This is the THIRTY-THIRD ANNUAL ISSUE. and will be found, as usual, to show an advance on preceding years both in fulness and accuracy of information. The DIRFCTORY covers the whole of the ports and cities of the Far East, from Penang to Viadivostock, in which Europeans reside. Not only is the Directory as full and complete in each case as it can be made, but each Colony, Port, or Settlement is profaced by a DESCRIP.

TION, carefully revised each year, most of which will serve as accurate Guides for the Tourist, giving every detail in connection with the places, their History, Topography, &c., &c. The Information afforded in these Descriptions, consisting of over NINETY highly interesting articles, packed with facts concisely set out, and containing statistics of the TRADE of each Country and Port, would alone suffice to fill an ordinary volume.

The work contains Directories and Descrip Kewkinng: Toinanfr Newchwane Takow Hankow Port Arthur Wuchang Swatow Ichang Chungking. Whambon Ningpo " Kowloon Wei Hai W Wenchow Lappa Holbow Foochow ·Amoy Pakhoi: Wanking. Tumsui' Lungchow Wubu Mongtzu Keèlung
